THE MEANS OF A READY ESCAPE: BROOKLYN’S PROSPECT PARK

Brooklyn Historical Society and Prospect Park Alliance Present Exhibition
Celebrating the rich history of Brooklyn’s Backyard on the occasion of Prospect Park’s 150th anniversary

BROOKLYN, NY, July 11, 2017— On July 13, 2017 Brooklyn Historical Society (BHS) and Prospect Park Alliance will present The Means of a Ready Escape: Brooklyn’s Prospect Park, an exhibition that highlights the 150-year social history of Brooklyn’s Backyard, on the occasion of this milestone anniversary. The exhibition, on view at BHS, tells the story of the 585 acres of forest, field and swamp that Frederick Law Olmsted and Calvert Vaux were charged with transforming into an urban oasis that would sustain generations of Brooklynites to come.

Editor’s Note: Please join us for a reception and viewing of the exhibition on Friday, July 14, from 5:30-7:30 pm, RSVP to dkirschner@prospectpark.org. Download images: www.prospectpark.org/BHSphotos.

The Park has never been simply an escape from the city, but a fundamental part of it. Brooklyn and Prospect Park have grown and changed together. Turn-of-the-century swan boats, carriage rides, and lawn tennis are long gone, replaced by in-line skaters, birders, dog-walkers, and drummers. But the aspiration to provide, in Olmsted’s words, “simple, temperate, healthful, rural and domestic forms of recreation” to Brooklyn’s “overworked inhabitants” is, perhaps, more fully realized today than ever before. Throughout its history the people of Brooklyn, and many others, have used, shared, and shaped Prospect Park.
Visitors to The Means of a Ready Escape will learn that sheep roamed the Long Meadow until the 1930s, Brooklyn’s middle-class black families chose Prospect Park over closer green spaces because it was a place where they "felt welcome," Robert Moses’ efforts to modernize the Park resulted in paving grassy areas for parking lots, and that Adele, a Park Slope caretaker, famously led children into the Park to play, introducing them to the safe haven it could be, despite the era in which the Park fell into disrepair. As the borough changed, so did the Park. The fiscal crisis of the seventies coincided with early waves of gentrification in surrounding neighborhoods. Lacking facilities staff to maintain its infrastructure, the park became perceived as notoriously unsafe. The gem-like boathouse we know today was then used as a recycling center. Paths and fences went un repaired. The non-profit Prospect Park Alliance was formed in the eighties, in an effort to sustain, restore and advance the Park. Examples of the hard work of compromise within a public park space, like rules around barbequing, the creation of the Drummers Grove, and car access in the park, are explored. Because the bones that comprised its foundation were so very sound, the Park has endured.

This history is told through panels and over 150 artifacts and documents including numerous postcards, scrapbooks, posters and photographs that reflect the ongoing relationship between the park and its many users. Visitors will enjoy viewing Olmsted and Vaux’s original plan of the Park, 1920s objects like tape measures and paper weights that depict scenes from the Park, hand drawn renderings from the 1990s of the Park’s woodlands restoration, and a model of Prospect Park Alliance's AIA National Honor Award-winning Samuel J. and Ethel LeFrak Center at Lakeside by Tod Williams and Billie Tsien Architects, which opened in 2013.

Related Programming

Screening and Discussion: Olmsted and America's Urban Parks
Monday, July 24, 6:30 pm – 8:30 pm
Register online at brooklynhistory.org
Join filmmaker Rebecca Messner at Brooklyn Historical Society for a screening and discussion of her documentary tribute to the visionary landscape architect Frederick Law Olmsted.

Prospect Park History Tour
Alternate Sundays and Select Friday evenings through October
Register online at prospectpark.org/tour
Celebrate the 150th anniversary of Prospect Park on this special series of guided walking tours, presented by Turnstile Tours in partnership with Prospect Park Alliance. These tours will examine the Park’s many layers of natural and human history. Prospect Park is a reflection of Brooklyn; its history traces that of the city around it, and it is today an important gathering place for many diverse communities that call the borough home.

About Brooklyn Historical Society
Founded in 1863, Brooklyn Historical Society is a nationally recognized urban history center dedicated to preserving and encouraging the study of Brooklyn’s extraordinary 400-year history. Located in Brooklyn Heights and housed in a magnificent landmark building designed by George Post and opened in 1881, today’s BHS is a cultural hub for civic dialogue, thoughtful engagement and community outreach.

About Prospect Park Alliance
Prospect Park Alliance is the non-profit organization that sustains, restores and advances Prospect Park, Brooklyn’s Backyard, in partnership with the City. The Alliance provides a majority of the staff and resources that keep the Park green and vibrant for the diverse communities that call Brooklyn home. Learn more at www.prospectpark.org.

# #

BHS Contact: Jeanne Hodesh, 347-381-3712, jhodesh@brooklynhistory.org
PPA Contact: Deborah Kirschner, 718-965-8983, dkirschner@prospectpark.org